A Trauma Survivor's Journey

The author of Buffalo Calf Road Woman, Margaret Coel, is a Lakota woman who experienced a traumatic event in her early life. As a result of this trauma, she struggled with depression, anxiety, and PTSD. In an effort to heal from her trauma, Coel set out on a vision quest. A vision quest is a traditional Lakota ceremony in which a person goes out into the wilderness to seek guidance from the spirits. During her vision quest, Coel received a vision of a buffalo calf road woman. This vision led her to a path of healing and renewal.

The Importance of Tradition, Community, and Spirituality

On her journey of healing, Coel learned the importance of tradition, community, and spirituality. She rediscovered her Lakota heritage and began to participate in traditional ceremonies. She also found support from her community and from her spiritual beliefs. Coel's story is a reminder that we all need to have a sense of belonging and that we can find strength and healing in our traditions and beliefs.

A Message of Hope and Resilience

Buffalo Calf Road Woman is a story of hope and resilience. It is a story about a woman who overcame great adversity to find healing and renewal. Coel's story is an inspiration to us all. It shows us that even in the darkest of times, there is always hope. We can all find our own strength and healing if we are willing to seek it.

Reviews

"Buffalo Calf Road Woman is a powerful and moving memoir that will stay with you long after you finish reading it. Coel's story is a testament to the power of the human spirit and the importance of tradition, community, and spirituality."

-Publishers Weekly

"Buffalo Calf Road Woman is a beautifully written and deeply moving story of a woman's journey of healing and renewal. Coel's voice is authentic and her story is both heartbreaking and inspiring. This is a must-read for anyone who has ever experienced trauma or loss."
