Historical Roots of Displacement

The book traces the origins of ethnic cleansing in Palestine back to the late 19th century, when Zionist ideology took hold and the concept of a Jewish homeland in Palestine gained traction. It examines the British Mandate era, during which the Balfour Declaration paved the way for Jewish immigration and land acquisition, setting the stage for the displacement of Palestinians.

Nakba: The Catastrophe of 1948

The book focuses extensively on the Nakba, or "catastrophe" of 1948, when hundreds of thousands of Palestinians were forcibly expelled from their homes and villages by Israeli forces. It provides detailed accounts of massacres, the destruction of villages, and the denial of the right of return for Palestinian refugees.

Ongoing Displacement and Occupation

The book also examines the ongoing displacement and occupation of Palestinian territories. It discusses the Israeli settlement enterprise, the construction of the separation wall, and the restrictions on Palestinian movement and economic development. It provides a comprehensive analysis of the human rights violations and the denial of self-determination for the Palestinian people.

International Law and Human Rights

The book meticulously analyzes the legal and ethical implications of the ethnic cleansing of Palestine. It examines the violations of international law, including the Geneva Conventions, and the principles of human rights and self-determination. It calls for accountability and justice for the victims of these heinous crimes.
