Doc examines the sick toys and discovers that they all have the same symptoms: they're all feeling tired and run down. Doc knows that the toys need some extra care and attention, so she takes them to her special Christmas room. In the Christmas room, Doc and her friends give the toys plenty of rest and fluids. They also sing Christmas carols and tell them stories about the magic of Christmas. Slowly but surely, the toys start to feel better.

On Christmas morning, the toys are all feeling much better. They're so grateful to Doc and her friends for helping them get well. Doc and her friends are happy to have helped the toys, and they're all excited to celebrate Christmas together. They exchange gifts, sing Christmas carols, and enjoy a delicious Christmas dinner.
